

EVENING COURSES

---

The School of General Studies shares its courses with the other Arts & Sciences divisions of the University. The majority of the courses are day classes, although there are significant evening offerings as well. Students can find both introductory and advanced courses offered in the evening, many of which will fulfill core requirements or count toward major requirements. While every Arts & Sciences department offers some evening courses, including sequences of courses in the sciences and some languages, in general it is not possible to fully complete a major or the premedical curriculum by attending evening classes only, and GS students should not count on this as a viable option.

Identifying Evening Courses

Students can search for courses that meet at particular times on specific week days by using the course search tool.