French and Francophone Studies

The undergraduate Major in French and Francophone Studies and Minor in French and Francophone Studies give students an overview of French and francophone literature, culture, politics, and societies from the Middle Ages to the present. Students take a series of required courses in which they hone their linguistic skills (primarily with Read, Think, Write in French) before delving into the study of literature, culture, politics and society with Introduction to French and Francophone Studies: History and Introduction to French and Francophone Studies: Literature, and the Senior Seminar in which students refine their understanding of literary analysis, works and methods and are introduced to research in French and francophone studies. Students also take advanced electives on any aspect of French or francophone literature, culture, or history.

The optional Senior Essay, written under the guidance of a faculty member at Columbia or during a student's semester abroad, provides an initiation to scholarly research. It is a requirement to be eligible for departmental honors.

Seeing as a direct experience of contemporary French society is an essential part of the program, students are strongly encouraged to spend a summer, a semester or an academic year at Reid Hall-Columbia University in Paris, where they can take courses that will be credited toward the French major as well as to other majors including Political Sciences, History or Art History. Qualified students may also take courses directly in the French university system.

Please reach out to the Director of Undergraduate Studies for Majors' and Minors' Worksheets (for French and Francophone Studies), which provide a breakdown of course requirements.

Student Advising

All advising for undergraduate students pursuing a French and Francophone studies major and minor is handled by the Director of Undergraduate Studies. Students with questions regarding language requirements should contact the Director of the French Language Program.

Coursework Taken Outside of Columbia Advanced Placement

Entering students are placed, or exempted, on the basis of their College Board Achievement or Advanced Placement scores, or their scores on the placement test taken online: FRENCH PLACEMENT TEST. An SAT score of 780 or a score of 5 on the AP exam satisfies the language requirement. Students with a score of 4 on the AP exam will be placed in Intermediate II, but may attempt to place out by requesting to take an oral exam administered by the Director of the Language Program.

Barnard College Courses

Many advanced literature and culture courses at Barnard College may fulfill elective credits for the French major or minor at Columbia, pending approval by the Director of Undergraduate Studies. Please note: The Barnard course, FREN BC1204 Intermediate II does not fulfill the undergraduate language requirement.

Transfer Courses

Transfer students may apply a limited number of qualifying credits from other institutions to elective courses in the French major and minor, pending approval from the Director of Undergraduate Studies. Students should be expected to present syllabi and transcripts for courses at previous institutions.

Study Abroad

Seeing as a direct experience of contemporary French society is an essential part of the program, students are strongly encouraged to spend either a summer term, a semester, or a full, academic year at Reid Hall, Columbia University's Global Center in Paris, where they can take courses that will be credited toward the French major as well as to other majors (e.g. history, art history, political science) and the global core. Qualified students may also take courses directly in the French university system.

For information on study abroad, visit the OGP website at www.ogp.columbia.edu, call 212-854-2559, or e-mail studyabroad@columbia.edu. For Reid Hall's French immersion program, please visit <https://global.undergrad.columbia.edu/program/columbia-paris-semester>.

Summer Study in Paris

Study abroad opportunities at Reid Hall are available during the summer. These include language and culture courses, global core electives and a combined course that meets both Columbia's ArtHum and MusicHum requirements. For information about study abroad, please visit <https://global.undergrad.columbia.edu/studyabroad>.

Summer Courses

The French Department offers a limited number of courses in the French language and in French and francophone literature, history, and culture over the summer. ## Undergraduate Research and Senior Essay

Senior Essay

The Senior Essay offers students an opportunity to immerse themselves in a research project and to hone their research and writing skills. It substitutes for an elective and makes the student eligible for departmental honors. The essay (25 pages minimum, in French) is usually written under the direction of a tenured or tenure-faculty faculty member (assistant professor, associate professor, or professor). Occasionally, with the permission of the DUS, the essay may be written under the direction of a lecturer. Only students who choose to write a Senior Essay are eligible for departmental honors.

The Senior Essay is a year-long project. Students are required to meet with the DUS to discuss their choice of adviser. They should do so preferably before the end of the spring semester of their junior year and no later than September 15th of their senior year. Once they have established a relationship with their adviser, they should have their research project approved by the latter, with a copy to the DUS (no later than October 15th). In the Spring, students should register for the Senior Tutorial in Literature (FREN UN3996). Students developing a Senior Essay are still required to take the Senior Seminar (FREN UN3995) in their senior year.

Undergraduate Research outside of Courses

The Department of French fosters students' research and critical thinking skills both inside and outside of the classroom. During their studies, interested students are encouraged to apply for undergraduate research funding opportunities, awarded by the department (see the Undergraduate Research Fellowship below), other Columbia units and outside sources. French and Francophone Studies graduates often go on to teach and research abroad, through programs like the US Fulbright Program or the Teaching Assistant Program in France \(TAPIF\).

Department Honors and Prizes

Academic Prizes

The Department of French awards the following prizes to students enrolled in courses in the department:

1. Prize for Excellence in French Studies: awarded to a highly promising student in an intermediate or advanced French course;
2. Senior French Prize: awarded to an outstanding graduating major.

Undergraduate Research Outside of Courses [drop-down]

The Department of French fosters students' research and critical thinking skills both inside and outside of the classroom. During their studies, interested students are encouraged to apply for undergraduate research funding opportunities, awarded by the department (see the Undergraduate Research Fellowship below), other Columbia units and outside sources. French and Francophone Studies graduates often go on to teach and research abroad, through programs like the US Fulbright Program or the Teaching Assistant Program in France \(TAPIF\).

Undergraduate Research Fellowship

Every year, the Department of French awards the French and Francophone Studies Undergraduate Research Fellowship. The fellowship is intended to support students majoring in the humanities or the social sciences pursuing research in France or a francophone country or region during the summer between their junior and senior years. Please visit this website for up-to-date information.

Department Honors

Majors who wish to be considered for departmental honors should consult with the director of undergraduate studies. To be eligible for departmental honors, students must have a grade point average of at least 3.7 in major courses and have completed an approved senior essay (information below) under the guidance of a faculty member at Columbia or Reid Hall. Normally no more than 10% of graduating majors receive departmental honors in a given academic year.

Other Important Information In Fulfillment of the Language Requirement

Students beginning the study of French at Columbia must take four terms of the following two-year sequence: FREN UN1101-UN1102 Elementary French I & II, and FREN UN2101-UN2102 Intermediate French I & II.

Entering students are placed, or exempted, on the basis of their College Board Achievement or Advanced Placement scores, or their scores on the placement test taken online: FRENCH PLACEMENT TEST. An SAT score of 780 or a score of 5 on the AP exam satisfies the language requirement. Students with a score of 4 on the AP exam will be placed in Intermediate II, but may attempt to place out by requesting to take an oral exam administered by the Director of the Language Program.

Please note: The Barnard course, FREN BC1204 Intermediate II does not fulfill the undergraduate language requirement.

Language Proficiency Courses

Elementary and intermediate French courses help students develop an active command of the language. In FREN UN1101 ELEMENTARY FRENCH I and FREN UN1102 ELEMENTARY FRENCH II, the communicative approach is the main instructional method. In addition to practicing all four language skills—listening, speaking, reading, and writing—students are introduced to the cultural features of diverse French-speaking communities.

In intermediate courses FREN UN2101 INTERMEDIATE FRENCH I and FREN UN2102 INTERMEDIATE FRENCH II, students develop linguistic competence through the study of short stories, films, novels, and plays. After completing the four-semester language sequence, students can discuss and write in fairly proficient French on complex topics.

At the third-year level, attention is focused on more sophisticated use of language, in grammar and composition courses, and on literary, historical, and philosophical questions.

Conversation Courses

Students looking for intensive French oral practice may take some of the 2-point conversation courses offered at intermediate and advanced levels. Conversation courses generally may not be counted toward the major or concentration.

Advanced Placement

- AP score of 4 automatically places a student in French Intermediate II, thereby granting them the equivalency of the first 3 courses of the elementary-intermediate sequence.
- AP score of 5 or DELF: The department grants 3 credits for a score of 5 on the AP French Language exam, or for the completion of DELF (Diplôme d'Etudes en Langue Française). Students are awarded this credit only after they take a 3000-level French course (taught in French, for at least 3 points) and obtain a grade of B or above in that course.
- DALF C1 level or IB HL score of 6 or 7: The department grants 3 credits for the C1 level of DALF (Diplôme Approfondi de Langue Française), or for a score of 6 or 7 on the International Baccalaureate (IB) Higher Level (HL) exam. Students have no obligation to take higher-level French courses in order to receive these 3 credits, but restrictions apply on the use of these credits toward the French major.

Language Laboratory and On-line Materials

Language laboratories located in the International Affairs Building provide opportunities for intensive practice in French pronunciation and aural comprehension. French courses typically make extensive use of on-line interactive materials that students can access from their own computers.

Maison Française

Students interested in French should acquaint themselves with the Maison Française, which houses a reading room of French newspapers, periodicals, books, and videos, and sponsors lectures/discussions and by distinguished French visitors to New York City. With its weekly French film series as well as, book club, café-conversation. Another opportunity to practice French, discover new aspects of Francophone culture, and learn about internships and professional opportunities is the French Cultural Society. For information about the FCS, contact the departmental liaison, Dr. Laurence Marie. and other events, the Maison Française offers an excellent opportunity for students to perfect their language skills and enhance their knowledge of French and Francophone culture.

Guidance for Undergraduate Students in the Department

Program Planning for all Students

Students interested in majoring or minoring in French and Francophone Studies should consult the Curriculum Maps, available on the Bulletin and the Department of French website. Students should also meet with the Director of Undergraduate Studies to discuss their degree progress on a semesterly basis.

Guidance for First-Year Students

Incoming students interested in majoring or minoring in French and Francophone Studies should immediately begin taking courses in French upon their arrival, after having taken the Language Placement Exam to test into the appropriate course level. Some students will need to take additional language courses before beginning courses for the major/minor, and others can proceed directly to major and/or minor requirements. As they continue with their course requirements, students should consult the Curriculum Maps, available on the Bulletin and the Department of French website. After their first year, students should also consult with the Director of Undergraduate Studies on a semesterly basis.

Guidance for Transfer Students

Transfer students interested in majoring or minoring in French and Francophone Studies should immediately should also consult with the Director of Undergraduate Studies, who will decide which, if any, courses may be afforded transfer credit. Students should have syllabi and course materials on hand, so that the DUS can evaluate possible courses for transfer credits. After this, students majoring or minoring in French and Francophone Studies are encouraged to meet with the DUS to discuss their degree progress on a semesterly basis.

Undergraduate Programs of Study

Major in French and Francophone Studies

For those students who would like to major in French and Francophone studies, please consult our website and the information below. Each student's program of study is to be discussed regularly with the Director of Undergraduate Studies, starting in the spring semester of the sophomore year.

COURSES

A minimum of 30 points beyond completion of the language requirement (FREN UN2102), which should be distributed as follows:

CORE (12 points):

FREN UN3405	Read, Think, Write in French (Formerly Titled, "Advanced Grammar and Composition")
FREN UN3409	INTRO TO FRENCH # FRANCOPHONE HISTORY
FREN UN3410	Intro French # Francophone Literature
FREN UN3995	SENIOR SEMINAR

ELECTIVES (18 points, or 15 points in case of a senior essay):

Six elective courses in French or francophone literature and culture at the 3000 or 4000 level.

These elective courses can include advanced literature, culture, and history courses offered by the Department of French, as well as our popular "French Thru/Through X" courses, which reinforce advanced French language proficiency through various cultural themes (including Current Events, Paris, Pop Culture, the Visual Arts, and so on).

These elective courses should include a minimum of one course that covers the Early-Modern period (before 1800) and a maximum of two "French Thru/Through X" classes (FREN UN32XX).

Students are encouraged to study abroad at Reid Hall. Relevant courses taken at Reid Hall or at a French partner institution may count towards the major.

Though students should prioritize classes taught in French and in the Department of French, courses with significant coverage of the French and Francophone world in other departments may also be counted towards the major with DUS approval.

Some French Barnard College courses may be taken with the approval of the Director of Undergraduate Studies.

CURRICULUM MAP:

- Students are encouraged to first complete FREN UN3405, to prepare themselves for other, more advanced university courses in French. One possible curriculum map is thus to take FREN UN3405, then the core literature and history survey courses (in any order or concurrently), before completing the three required elective courses. However, additional core and elective courses can ultimately be taken in any order or concurrently.
- Elective credits can also be completed while studying abroad, either at the Columbia Undergraduate program at Reid Hall in Paris or at partner institutions, such as Sciences Po and a few other qualifying Parisian universities.
- Any elective courses taken at partner institutions will be subject to DUS approval.

Minor in French and Francophone Studies

For those students who would like to minor in French and francophone studies, please consult our website and the information below. Each student's program of study is to be discussed regularly with the Director of Undergraduate Studies, starting in the spring semester of the sophomore year.

COURSES

The minor is composed of five courses, or a minimum of 15 points beyond the language requirement / prerequisite (FREN UN2102), which are distributed as follows.

CORE (6 points):

- FREN UN3405 "Read, Think, Write in French" (Formerly titled "Advanced Grammar and Composition")
- One of our two core interdisciplinary, undergraduate survey courses, which cover literature, history, and culture from the Middle Ages to the Present. These include either the history survey (FREN UN3409 Introduction to French and Francophone Studies: History) or the literature survey (FREN UN3410 Introduction to French and Francophone Studies: Literature).

INTERDISCIPLINARY ELECTIVES (9 points):

- The remaining three electives can be fulfilled by various French or Francophone literature courses at the 3000 or 4000 level.
- These elective courses can include advanced literature, culture, and history courses offered by the Department of French, as well as our popular "French Thru/Through X" (FREN UN32XX) courses, which reinforce advanced French language proficiency through various cultural themes (including Current Events, Paris, Pop Culture, the Visual Arts, and so on).
- Students are encouraged to study abroad at Reid Hall. Relevant courses taken at Reid Hall or at a French partner institution may count towards the major.
- Though students should prioritize classes taught in French and in the Department of French, courses with significant coverage of the French and Francophone world in other departments may also be counted towards the minor with DUS approval.
- Although students should prioritize classes taught in the Department of French at Columbia, some French courses at Barnard College may be taken with the approval of the Director of Undergraduate Studies.

CURRICULUM MAP:

- Students are encouraged to first complete FREN UN3405, to prepare themselves for other, more advanced university courses in French. One possible curriculum map is thus to take FREN UN3405, then one core course (either the literature or history survey courses), before completing the three required elective courses. However, additional core and elective courses can ultimately be taken in any order or concurrently. Students may also opt to take the remaining core course for an elective credit (i.e., to take both the literature and history survey courses, and to count one towards the minor requirement and one towards an elective credit).
- Elective credits can also be completed while studying abroad, either at the Columbia Undergraduate program at Reid Hall in Paris or at partner institutions, such as Sciences Po and a few other qualifying Parisian universities.

- Any elective courses taken at partner institutions will be subject to DUS approval.

LANGUAGE PROFICIENCY REQUIREMENTS:

- Students could begin completing their minor immediately in their freshman year but should begin a minor no later than their junior year. Upon arrival at Columbia, interested students will need to pass the language proficiency exam to determine whether they need to complete first- and second-year French courses, or whether they can pass directly to FREN UN3405.
- All language prerequisites must be completed before taking FREN UN3405.
- The AP French exam already fulfills the language requirement for Columbia students, so it may not fulfill requirements for the minor.

For students who entered Columbia in or before the 2023-24 academic year

FREN UN3242 FREN LANG,SOC,CULTRE THRU PARIS. 3.00 points.

Prerequisites: 2 years of college French Paris may be referred to as the capital of modernity, as the city of romance and pleasure, as the center of social and political powers, or as a privileged stage for crises and revolutions. Analyzing and researching the meanings of these diverse representations would expose students to key aspects of French and Francophone political, social, and cultural history. This is a proposal for a course intended for students who, having completed their language requirement in French, would like to better their knowledge of French language and society. It would offer students the opportunity to study representations of Paris over the centuries as a way to practice writing, reading, and conversation in French and as a way to deepen their understanding of French and Francophone cultures. Materials for the course would include major literary texts as well as paintings, movies and popular songs, but also museum websites, local newspapers and local ads, brochures from retail and food malls, restaurant menus, postcards... such variety can be utilitarian and intellectually compelling at the same time. It would allow students not only to study language registers and vocabulary contextualization but also work on finding patterns and making connections

FREN UN3244 FRENCH THRU CURRENT EVENTS. 3.00 points.

The course will offer students an understanding of fundamental underlying concepts that structure French society and that are necessary to grasp if one wants to follow current events in France. This course could be of interest not only to CC students but also to students enrolled at SIPA or Teacher's College. Moreover, this course would allow for a comparative approach to how same events are covered in US, or other foreign media, and in France. Given that this course will deal with current events, the readings will depend entirely on how the news unfolds. Students will be given an introduction to the various media outlets available to them: the press, television and online sources. As the course unfolds, I will adapt the choice of sources that best follow events as they happen. 2022 for example, will be the year France assumes the presidency of the European Union. It will also be the year of the presidential elections. For such events, I will propose specific institutional sources. On the other hand, events that could not be anticipated will require some form of guidance in terms of sources. In spite of the obvious unpredictability of the specific content of this course, certain key concepts necessary to understand current events in France will be presented. These may vary slightly from one semester to another, but would include, without being limited to: the structure of government and public institutions, political parties, unions and "associations", social benefits and "the welfare state", public vs. private sector, "Paris is France", universalism, secularism and "laïcité", cultural exceptionalism, the figure of the intellectual, national identity, immigration, geography of France and demographics, relation to Europe, geopolitics, globalization and sovereignty. Of course, the choice of themes and concepts in a given semester would be influenced by dominant topics in the French news

FREN UN3243 Lang. Culture, Society: La culture pop. 3.00 points.

The host of the daily radio show Popopop on the public radio France Inter routinely introduces his guests by asking them "what is pop culture?"/"qu'est ce que la culture pop?" The answers are at least as diverse as the guests' cultural, social, and generational backgrounds. Keeping the complexity and variety of the possible answers to this question in mind, students in this class will be introduced to French pop culture or La culture pop française both in its specificity and in contrast to American pop culture. In this French language class, critical thinking applied to mass media such as music, movies, ads, and newspapers, as well as literature ranging from les BD (comics and graphic novels) to les polars (detective fiction), and as well as to Social Media (blogs, podcasts, influencers, etc.) will enable students to better grasp some of the forces shaping culture in French society, equipping them with knowledge and concepts that are helpful to understanding dominant cultural trends and their impact on contemporary French Society. Exposing students to such a wide variety of materials will be intellectually compelling and will also expose them to a variety of language registers
